What is the current research regarding language acquisition?

Strategies for you to use to enhance your child’s overall language and vocabulary.
Research indicates children who are Deaf or Hard of Hearing tend to be “noun-heavy,” meaning that they tend to use more nouns than any other words.

When you use nouns the only thing you can do is label.
Vocabulary Building

The ratio of Nouns vs. other words. Ratio should be between .3-.6

Strategies that you can use:
To engage your child and help him/her learn, start by helping him/her SMILE!
ENGAGEMENT

Learn through PLAY and PLAY with LOVE!

WAIT TIME

Give your child enough wait time to fully experience a toy, object, or book.

Then WAIT for your child to show you that they want more!

What does that look like for your child?
What is the dog doing?

Look at that dog! He is barking! Ruff! Ruff!
I wonder what this is?
I wonder if this could be a car? No. A bird? No.
Narrate experiences for your child and use words that connect to your child’s five senses.
“Your peanut butter sandwich is sticky! It feels funny on your fingers, I will wipe it off.”

“Wow! That fire truck was so loud and bright! It’s lights were flashing yellow and red and it raced by so fast!”
To COMMUNICATE a child needs a DIVERSE vocabulary to include other words like: verbs, adjectives, attributes, spatial words etc.
The goal we should strive for is for every 10 nouns your child produces, he/she typically needs to use between 3-6 other types of words.
Pair known vocabulary with unknown.

The strategy known as “sandwiching” helps your child make meaningful connections and he/she learns to use more complex vocabulary.
Sandwiching

1. Start by describing something with a known word.
2. Continue to comment and use a new/unknown word.
3. Pair again with the known word.
It could look something like this: “Look at those (really big) tires on that monster truck!

They are (huge!) A monster truck has really big tires!
Strategies

Use the technique of “chaining”

Take a moment to give a short explanation about how things work or what you are thinking when you try to figure out a problem in your daily routine.
Strategies to BUILD Vocabulary

Use synonyms for already known words.

Use specific words rather than general language.

For example, say “Put the dish on the counter” rather than “Put IT over THERE“ with a point toward the counter.
Name the parts of common things such as the faucet instead of just “turn the water on.”

- Play family word games.
- Try to use NEW words that your children might not know in everyday interactions. Instead of happy/sad up the level to be more descriptive such as thrilled/disappointed.
